ANOTHER FATAL ACCIDENT.

A Veteran Railroader Horribly Mangled by the Wheels.

Accidents, like other misfortunes, never come singly, and the last three days have been called upon to chronicle a succeeding array of casualties of varying gravity. Another shocking accident, resulting in instant death to an employee of the C. & P. V. & railroad company, occurred at Bridgeport last evening.

The victim was Edward Pratt, a man fifty years of age, having an experience of railroad life in various capacities for thirty years. He was a stout, well-developed man, and was at the time of the accident, engaged in the work of unloading a box car at Bridgeport. Yesterday he attempted to load a box freight car with the train of which it was part was in motion. In some unexplained way he missed his footing, and losing his hold, was thrown violently to the ground, falling upon the track. Five cars of the train passed completely over his body, mangled and bruising his body in a most sickening manner, and killing him instantly. The remains were gathered up and removed to his residence in Kirkwood.

As stated above, Pratt was about fifty years old, and was a veteran railroader, his experience of that life dating from thirty years ago. He was at one time a passenger conductor on the Cleveland & Pittsburgh road. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn his sudden and most shocking death.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Wheeling, folks and their friends at home and abroad.

O. L. Holliday, Esq., of Mountville, was in the city yesterday.

Ex-delegate Lewis of Summers county, is still in the city on real estate business.

P. F. Simms, late Sheriff of Mineral county, was settling up with the Auditor yesterday.

State Superintendent of Schools Butler is taking in Washington and Baltimore this week.

Geo. W. Marshall and wife are registered at the Hale. George is well known and has a host of friends in the valley.—Charleston Call.

Our old friend, Uncle Dan Rice, is still alive. The Cincinnati Enquirer says: Dan Rice is in the city, but the report that he is organizing new Temperance lodges is not correct.

THE CLUB SOCIETY.

Opened its New Club House with a Grand Concert—The Building.

If the first concert given by the recently formed Arion is to be taken as an augury for its future, then that future is a bright and successful one, and from the character and standing of the well known citizens who form the Society we are doubly sure that a most prosperous future awaits them.

The opening concert took place last evening, and the building was formally turned over to the Society by the contractors. The concert was an event that had been for some weeks anticipated with pleasure by our prominent citizens, and a large number of Americans. Their expectations were fully realized. Eight o'clock found the cozy little theatre, that forms the fourth story of the club building, crowded with about four hundred persons, who listened with the liveliest interest to the rendition of the following program:

Overture—Norman. Bellini.

Opera House Orchestra.

Opening Address—Mr. L. C. Stiefel.

Dedication Poem—(By Dr. A. Schaefer and Chorus—Oswald.)

Quartet—Moonlight on the Lake. White.

Moses and Annie Hoss and Messrs. G. A. Schaefer and Frank Wacker.

Violin Solo—Concerto in A Major. Mendelssohn.

Arise—All to the Pleasure. Mendelssohn.

Mrs. Chas. W. Wolf, with Violin Obligato by Prof. Schaefer.

Grand Solo—Violin. Schaefer.

Opera House Orchestra.

Violin Solo—Concerto in A Major. Mendelssohn.
